PROVEN IMPACT ON STUDENTS

The Outdoor Adventures curriculum is taught in schools around the country that report many positive outcomes in class participants. Beyond the lifelong outdoor skills learned, school principals report improved self-esteem, improved attendance, fewer discipline issues, and improved grades for students in the course. Many students are not involved in other extracurricular activities, so the Outdoor Adventures program helps those students become more engaged in school.

There are no racial, physical, gender or socioeconomic boundaries--giving all students an equal opportunity to participate.
